

EXTRA LONG SEC MEETING MISSES PRESS TIME

As we go to press what promises to be one of the longest Students' Executive Council meetings in McGill history is still in progress.

Up to press time only half of the agenda of 15 items had been discussed and it does not seem likely that all items will be debated before adjournment.

However, the following items have been completed:

— A report on student parking facilities which has already appeared in the Daily of September 24

— The appointment of a Parking Allocations Committee

— The appointment of editors for Forge, The Fig Leaf, the Students Directory

— The appointment of the chairman of the McGill Prom

— The presentation of a brief concerning proposed changes in the Students' Society Constitution.

Complete details of the meeting will be published in tomorrow's daily.

Sommers Named New Director Of Dramatics

Mr. John J. Sommers, Fulbright scholar and graduate of Amherst University, has joined the staff of the English Department and will be in charge of Dramatic Production. Mr. Sommers will produce and direct two full length plays for the Department during the 1957-58 season, and will give a course in Modern European and American Drama.

Minnesota Graduate

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Carleton College, Minnesota, Mr. Sommers was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship in Drama to the University of Bristol where he conducted studies in Greek Theatre under the supervision of H.D.F. Kitto. During his stay in England, he produced and directed a documentary film, and was assistant to the director of the Bristol Old Vic in its production of "A Winter's Tale".

JOHN J. SOMMERS

Returning to the United States, Mr. Sommers continued his studies at Amherst University where he directed several major productions, and designed, lighted, and acted in others.

Founded Theatre

During the summer of 1956, he founded and directed a professional theatre in Northampton, Massachusetts. Among the plays presented were "Hamlet", "Arms and the Man", "Private Lives", and "The Importance of Being Earnest".

Battle Of Wits

Profs' "Lives" At Stake On Stormy Seas

Tonight at eight is the Professors Raft Debate, and the Union Ballroom is slated to resound with a literal Battle of the Blurbs, as four fearless educators battle for the right to remain afloat in a raft equipped for only one passenger.

The annual Professors' Raft Debate, which is held in conjunction with freshman activities is open to all students on the campus. There will be an opportunity for freshmen and freshettes to meet their professors on an informal basis, and perhaps receive a foretaste of the many illuminating witticisms passed out with the regular lecture-day curricula.

Four Professors

Professors Miller, Hitschfeld, Arcand and Pugsley, representing the Arts, Science, Engineering and Commerce faculties respectively, will vie for the right to monopolize the raft. The bouts will consist of ten-minute presentations by each speaker, each extolling the merits of his particular field of knowledge as contrasted with the others. Three must flunk and be sunk and only one can remain; who will it be?

Refreshments

Following the debate, professors and students will meet in the Lounge on an informal basis, and refreshments will be served. Professors from other faculties have been invited to attend the debate, thus affording a greater number of students to know their professors better and on a social basis.

35 Years' Service

Mrs. G. Murray Dies Suddenly

The campus has been saddened by the news that Mrs. Gladys Murray, long-time Secretary to the Warden of Royal Victoria College passed away on Sept. 30. Mrs. Murray had been Secretary to the Warden for thirty-five years. She officially retired from her post at the end of the university year last spring because of ill health.

Mrs. Murray was born in England sixty years ago, and received her education there. She became Secretary to the Warden of R.V.C. immediately upon coming to Canada, and held the position until her recent death. She served as Secretary under four R.V.C. Wardens, Miss Hurlbut, Mrs. Vaughan, Mrs. Grant, and the present Warden, Dr. Roscoe.

Long Service

During her long term of service Mrs. Murray saw many changes in the university, and had a vast knowledge of the history of McGill. She also saw many of the daughters of graduates she had known themselves become graduates of McGill.

Keen Interest

Mrs. Murray took a keen interest in all student activities. Two years ago the Women's Union presented her with the "A" award, the highest award it can give for outstanding service to the Women's Union. On her retirement she was presented with a silver rose bowl by the residents of R.V.C. Mrs. Murray was also a faithful supporter of the McGill hockey team. She was loved and respected by all who knew her. As one admirer said of her, "She was R.V.C."

2700 German Books Now On Display

German Literature Shown At Library

The first German book exhibition in Canada is on view at McGill's Redpath Library until Oct. 9 when it will move on to the University of Montreal. This collection of 2700 books ranges in subject matter from Theology and Sociology to Politics, from children's books to Technical Handbooks.

In charge of this display is Franz von Muller-Hippman.

Ambassador Comments

Though this display of books, sponsored by German publishers is firstly a commercial venture, its Patron, Dr Hasso von Etzdorf, the German ambassador hopes that it will "create new bridges and show something of what the German mind brought forth during the post war years."

Close to a thousand books have already been sold on Medicine and languages alone. These books are obtainable at the Mansfield Book Mart at their original German prices.

Editorials

Girls Are Different Than Boys

We sat opposite a young lady at supper last night who frankly amazed us. Usually, when we sit opposite young ladies, even at supper, we are usually too intent on appreciating those wonderful qualities which each new generation of boys discover all over again in the opposite sex, to admire their gastronomical abilities.

We just had to notice last night however. This young lady had just returned from a shopping expedition, and we use the word expedition advisedly, which lasted from noon until five pm and which had ended with a meal at a Chinese restaurant. Now we all know Chinese meals; there is a lot to eat. Yet this young lady sat down a scant hour later to a meal with four young men. She started eating after them and she finished before them. Throughout the meal she would be heard muttering languidly that she didn't know why she was eating again. We didn't know either.

What we do know is that psychologists are always telling us that women are better balanced than men, they can bear pain better, can survive a broken love affair more easily, can stand extremes of heat and cold better than men and so on ad infinitum. This is all probably true. They also can spend more money quicker, and, it appears, eat more often.

What does all this add up to? We are not sure we know ourselves but we have a sinking feeling that all in all boys, we men just can't win.

To Hell On Wheels

The French are at it again. They've thrown over another Prime Minister, and as usual they're speaking of resurrecting De Gaulle. The tourists have been shipped home to show their colored slides, the pornography salesmen no longer crowd the entrance to the American Express office, Parisians have moved back into their city, the government is uncertain, Algeria is not being co-operative, everything is back to normal.

As far as most of the world is concerned, France means Paree, and as far as Pareesians are concerned, they seem to have solved all the problems of their world. They're anarchists, enlightened, with a great and deep culture and exquisite tastes, and they don't care a damn about having a two-party system or even a ten-party system. Frenchmen would never tolerate one government for 22 years — it would be too dull. This is hard on more prosaic nations who can't understand how the French can change governments as quickly and casually as Dior changes women's figures, but to the Frenchman it's easy; he's going to hell on wheels and he knows it and he doesn't seem to care. He drinks himself to death — it's so bad that beside every underwear ad in the Paris Subway (or Metro) there's a government suggestion that the nation not commit liquid suicide — he invents political parties who advocate abolition of taxes, he influences the entire intellectual world, he looks proudly at the Louvre when he passes by, he sincerely believes that women are admirable creatures, and joke of jokes, he seems to enjoy it all. And if the government falls, then it falls, and there'll probably be a new one in a little while.

Letters To The Editor

Sir:

The "Daily" editorial in the Oct. 1 edition criticizing Army Day was misleading, idealistic, and in fact highly fallacious.

Firstly, Army Day was originated to bring the Army into the public eye and to show the Canadian people what they are getting for their two-billion dollar services' budget. For the military to march down Sherbrooke street "like peacocks" displays excellent discipline and training. That these men feel proud of themselves shows that their morale is high. To glorify our Army in this manner is not to glorify war — it is to glorify this country's deterrent to war.

Secondly, an army is not necessarily the most barbaric of all human organizations. How barbaric it is depends on its use by the powers-that-be. Was the Canadian army "barbaric" when it helped combat the Red River floods of 1950? Is it barbaric when it helps search for missing people? Was it barbaric when it helped put out the raging fire on Mount St. Helens just last August?

Perhaps this editorial writer should step down from Cloud 7?

Brahm Campbell, B.A. 4
Harold Greenspon, B. Com. 4

The function of a newspaper is as much to reflect the views of its readers as of its editors and writers; letters to the editor serve most adequately as indices of campus opinion. As well, they provide a medium for those people who want to express their agreement, or more likely, their disagreement, with the Daily's editorial policies. Subject matter of letters to the editor is a matter of discretion for the author, and letters on any topic will be considered for publication.

All letters, however, if they are for publication, must be signed, and the faculty and year of the sender must be included. If the writer wishes, he may provide a pseudonym which will be printed under the letter, and his identity will be known only by Managing Board of the Daily. Letters should be addressed to the Editor, and left with George in the Union tuckshop, or mailed directly to the Daily.

Articles of a general nature can also be submitted for publication. The Daily cannot guarantee publication but we are always eager to publish material which would be appreciated on campus.

Sir:

I don't mind if anyone calls John Foster Dulles a roaming, raving, Republican. Neither do I object to anyone calling Krushchev a babbling, babbling, Bolshevik.

When, however, aspersions are cast against persons or institutions without any apparent justification for such criticism, then I can no longer remain silently acquiescent.

The September 30th editorial condemnation of the Ford Motor Company for placing on the market its new Edsel car, was as uncalled for as it was unappreciated.

What was even more disturbing than the diatribe against the Ford Motor Company, was the fact that the author's remarks were not only confined to his dislike for Edsels, but by insinuation seemed to deride capitalist organization of business in general.

The automobile industry, and the Ford Motor Company in particular, is an excellent example of how successful and beneficial private enterprise can be, not only to those who own the industry but also to those who enjoy the products of that industry.

Competition and the search for profit impels the private entrepreneur to seek new and more efficient methods of production. If producers cannot convince consumers that their products have more to offer than their competitors, they must either improve their product or inevitably declare bankruptcy. The history of the Ford Motor Company demonstrates that in its fight for continued solvency it has constantly sought to improve its products. As a result hundreds of thousands of people throughout the world are today, or soon will be, driving Edsels instead of Model T's.

I am convinced that such callous and capricious editorials such as the one to which I have referred, do not meet with the sympathy of most straight thinking Canadians, and as such is not in the best interests of either this publication, the university or its student body.

Very truly yours,
Gerald W. Postelnik, B.A. 4

Era Ends

Baptist Ties Cut At McMaster U.

From the Toronto Varsity

Hamilton — (CUP) — Seventy years of Baptist control at McMaster University ended last June when two Ontario legislative acts ushered in a new era at the college.

Under the acts, the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec relinquished its legal responsibility of the university's work and financing and was succeeded by a non-denominational Board of Governors and Senate. McMaster and Hamilton College became one corporation under the name of McMaster University.

THEOLOGY

McMaster Divinity College became an affiliated College of Theology. It will remain under its former denominational Board of Trustees representing the Baptist convention.

McMaster's President, Dr. P. G. Gilmour gave the increasing burden of university maintenance as a main reason for the change. "Our budget is now ten times larger than it was in 1930, and the entire administration has progressively become too grave a responsibility for a church body," Dr. Gilmour said.

SPRINGFORD HEADS PLAYERS THIS YEAR

It was announced by the McGill Players Club that Norma Springfield, Montreal dramatist, will direct the annual production. The title of the play and audition dates will appear in the Daily shortly. As in the past few years, the production will be staged in the arena style.

Quoting a member of the McGill Players Club: "The success of 'My Fur Lady' has given a higher criterion to theatrical groups at McGill. This satirized Canadian rage took its first steps as the curtain rose on the 1957 Red and White Revue. Now its progress is up to McGill students'."

The Players Club hopes to make a contribution through the experimentals of 1957-58, which will be a three night presentation of original one-act plays written, directed, produced and acted by McGill students. Originality will be encouraged in every aspect.

TEA DANCE

The strains of Mike Dodman and his orchestra will officially open and welcome all McGillians to the first tea dance of the season. The place will be The Union Ballroom, the time, 4 to 6:30 p.m. Admission is 50¢ per head, including refreshments. All football fans welcome.

He said the importance of the change lies in public relations and community support, and will make relatively little difference to the atmosphere and work of the university.

NEW BOARD

The reorganized Board of Governors of 38 members is composed of many leading industrial and professional figures in the district.

"Series" Telecast At Union Today

Students will again be able to watch the World Series on the Union's Television set. Chairs have been arranged in the lounge for the express purpose of viewing this fall classic.

The first game of the Series will be shown to-day at 1:15 p.m. All games played in New York will be starting at this time, but those played in Milwaukee will start at 3 p.m.

Symphonic Band Plans Activities

In the two years since its inception, the McGill Symphonic Band has become an integral part of campus life.

Last season, among other activities, the Band was an added attraction with the Choral Society's "Spring Song", and will this year play solos and accompaniments with the Society's Christmas program.

After Christmas, the Symphonic Band will produce its own concerts and possibly give a guest performance at another university. This assures an active season, and as a growing campus organization, the Band welcomes all those who are interested in becoming members.

Practices and rehearsals commence today at 5 p.m. in the Union, and all interested are asked to appear or to contact Bill Hutchison at PL. 1674.

Swim Tests

Last opportunity for Swim Tests will be on Friday, October 4 between 1 and 2 p.m. Freshmen who have not taken their swimming test are required to do so at the listed time.

BILINGUAL UNIVERSITY

University of Ottawa was designed as a bilingual college from its start in 1848 as "the College of Bytown."

Western Hit By 'Flu Epidemic

LONDON — A virus believed to be Asian flu is sweeping the campus of the University of Western Ontario, hospitalizing many students.

The bug has hit the whole city, and the closing of public and high schools looms as a distinct possibility.

University officials indicated classes at UWO may be cancelled if the flu becomes more serious. So far classes will remain open, at least until the flu has been diagnosed.

Some university officials "believed" the virus had been identified, others claim the bug has been "positively identified", as Asian flu.

London medical authorities refuse to comment on the possibility of Western being infected by Asian flu, but stated none of the cases so far analyzed are the mysterious virus.

Dances and other social functions at the university have already been cancelled because of the "dozens" hospitalized. It is believed impossible to quarantine whole residences at the university.

SCOPE RATES

Scope offers student reduced rates for Montreal Symphony Orchestra on sale in the Union lobby on Thursday 3-5 and Friday 9-12. Price is sixteen dollars for the twelve concerts. No cheques will be accepted as payment. Cash must be paid at time of purchase and student cards must be shown. The first concert will be Oct. 15 and 16.

Champion Soccer Squad Set To Meet Sir George

McGill's 'Intercollegiate Champion' soccer team opens its 1957 slate of contests tonight with a game against Sir George Williams College at 7:30 p.m. on the Upper Field.

At the present time there are only five returnees from last year's team, and as yet the rest of the team is of unknown and untested calibre. Several more of last year's top notch squad are expected to turn out for the team in several days, and this should give the outfit the added punch, balance and experience required by a team seeking to defend last year's well deserved title.

The Red and White soccermen have a new coach this season in the person of Brian Cleary, and Cleary is reported to be quite impressed with the showing of some of the new boys thus far.

Cleary is not new to his present position, having coached the same crew through the 1951 and 1952 schedules. Bob Wilkinson, who last year led the squad in its trail of glory, is still a member of the McGill Staff. However, he found it necessary to relinquish his chores due to the fact that the McGill School of Physical Education has been transferred in part to the MacDonald College campus, and most of his time is spent there teaching classes.

Cleary's team will as usual be playing off with the University of Toronto for the Intercollegiate title, with the laurels being decided in a home and home total point series. These matches will take place this year on the first two Saturdays in November.

The team's next game is scheduled for this Saturday, October 5, against RCAF Station — St. Johns, Quebec. Game time for this exhibition title is 10:30 am on the Upper Field.

Women's Sports

The following is the new system for the selection of representatives of women's intramural sport teams:

1. There will be a campus-wide opportunity in this system of selection of the intramural rep. for each sport.
2. Each of the following sports must have a rep. to sit on the intramural Sports Council of the M.W.S.A.A.: Archery, Badminton, Basketball, Fencing, Figure skating, Ice Hockey, Riflery, Skiing, Squash, Soccer, and volleyball.

3. Application forms must be submitted by Wed. Oct. 9, 2 pm to the Phys. Ed. Office in R.V.C. for those interested in running for the positions. These positions are open to all girls in all years.

4. These application forms MUST include:

- a. past experience
- b. sport desired to represent
- c. reason for applying
- d. applicant's signature, address, and telephone number.

5. Selection will be made by the executive of the M.W.S.A.A. and the intercollegiate sports managers. Those chosen will be notified and introduced to the council at the following M.W.S.A.A. meeting.

Intercollegiate Foursome Picked

McGill's 1957 Intercollegiate Golf squad was narrowed down to the final four members yesterday at the Royal Montreal Golf Course. The foursome will compete for the Intercollegiate Championship on Friday, Oct. 4 at Queen's.

Don Alexander (82-78), Carl Mein (80-82), Barry Code (80-82) and Syd Godel (81-83) qualified to represent the Red and White. The alternate members is Richard Bowie (85-82) Dave Pemberton-Smith, who fired a 78 yesterday to win the Intramural Golf Championship, has been declared ineligible for this year's team.

Mein started out very well in yesterday's round of play by sinking a 25 yard chip shot to give him an eagle on the par five 525 yard first hole.

In addition to the Intercollegiate play, the golfers will also be battling for an individual honours award. The defending champion Western team is expected to field a strong foursome. Toronto and Queen's are the other entrants.

Four Stay Afloat In Rocking Boat

by Ron Fleischman
Chief Staff Writer

Beset by mutiny, the little raft rocked, rattled and rolled on the heaving seas of controversy, heading aimlessly into the unknown. "An arts training is the best preparation for voyages into the unknown" said the Professor of Arts.

The Professors' Raft was again afloat, and her crew were engaged in a friendly, if mutinous debate. The raft contained provisions for only one survivor, and all others would sooner or later have to go overboard leaving the most deserving of the crew to find his way to civilization alone.

The first speaker to present his case was Dr. William A. Pugsley, assistant Professor of Commerce. Dr. Pugsley believed that he was entitled to survival because of the fact that the moneyed men of Commerce supported arts in all ages. "Commerce", he said, "will give you all that the arts will, but with a hand on the money-tree as well". He demonstrated how businessmen would be capable of owning some of the finest works of art, as he produced a roll of well-engraved, artistic banknotes.

Engineer's Story

Professor Louis Arcand represented Engineering. He said that he would only be too pleased to survive alone on the raft if the proverbial 40 beers were included in the provisions. He described engineering as "an old art and a craft, in which there was no room for sloppy thinking". An engineer faces problems as he finds them, not as he wishes them to be. "Engineering interprets some phenomenon of nature with some degree of accuracy, at least" stated Prof. Arcand.

Third speaker was Professor James Miller, MacDonald Professor of Philosophy, who defended the position of the oft-misunderstood artsman. He believed that Arts was better than the other professions, excellent though they be, and that the artsman is a more generally educated person, whereas the others were specializing.

He pointed out that Engineers, for instance, would be useful aboard the raft provided that "we know where we're going, and only the artsman can know what the future holds".

Scientist Speaks

The fourth speaker, Dr. Walter F. Hitschfeld of the Physics department complained about the woeful ignorance people have of science. He wanted to know what a businessman could do alone on a raft; how could he trade in business and study the stock-market? What of the artsman-humanist, — since his principal interest was in studying man, he would then only get bored studying himself. "The Engineers, — mere draughtsmen, — can only study to know more and more about less and less, till in the fullness of time they know everything about nothing", said Dr. Hitschfeld.

MCWA Sponsors All-Canada Meet

"I am very interested to learn of the various aspects of Canada's world relations which are to be discussed during the Conference", declared the Right Hon. John Diefenbaker, Prime Minister of Canada, after receiving an information brochure recently published by the Programme Committee of M.C.W.A.

The first all-Canadian student conference on international affairs ever to be staged in Canada will be held on campus from November 20th until November 23rd, 1957.

Twenty-six universities, spanning the country from Newfoundland to British Columbia, have been invited to send delegates to M.C.W.A., where during four days these 65 students will sit in on round table discussions and plenary sessions.

Events on Schedule

Highlights of the conference will be a key-note address on Wednesday night, a panel discussion Thursday evening in Redpath Hall and a closing banquet on Friday night.

To a certain extent, M.C.W.A. is patterned after similar conferences held in the United States every year at the Westpoint Military Academy and Texas A & M.

The delegates will discuss "some aspects of Canadian foreign policy". For purposes of round table debates, the topic of the Conference will be divided in three headings: Canada and the U.N., Canada, the Commonwealth and the U.S., and Canada and N.A.T.O.

Speaking of the last subdivision, General Alfred M. Gruenther, former head of the Atlantic Treaty Organization commented, "... it is very gratifying to know that so many young Canadian citizens will have an opportunity to discuss all aspects of this important organization".

Principal's Message

In a personal message to Canadian universities, Dr. F. Cyril James, Honorary Chairman of M.C.W.A. wrote, "The theme of the Conference... is timely indeed and should show our fellow citizens that the horizon of the McGill student is not bounded by the walls of the classroom and the bleachers of the arena."

The M.C.W.A. executive, at work since the summer months, is made up of Yves Fortier and Pierre Lamontagne, third year Law students, Co-Chairmen; Mary Stavert, (BCL 3) and Roy Heenan (BCL 1) Co-Vice-Chairmen; and Donna Irony (BA3) Executive Co-ordinator. Anyone wishing to work on the Conference should contact anyone of the above.

SEC Considers MUS Plea; Press Purchase Approved

The Medical Undergraduate Society urgently needs additional funds, not only to continue its present program, but also to rebuild student-faculty rapport. Mr. Garth Mosher, President of the MUS reported this to the Students' Executive Council at their meeting on Tuesday night.

At present, the Students' Society has an arrangement with each undergraduate society for an unconditional per capita grant of $1.00 to be made back to the individual societies. This grant comes from the Students' Society fee of $15.00 per student. In order to obtain the funds necessary for their proposed increased program, the MUS is seeking changes in the constitution of the Students' Society which would permanently divert a larger portion of the Students' Society dues paid by each medical student back to the MUS.

No Objection to Withdrawal

Mr. Mosher reported that a questionnaire had been circulated

by DONNA IRONY
Associate Editor

among the Medical students last year. Among the results of this circular was the emergence of the fact that 93% of what Mr. Mosher considered a representative portion of the students did not object to complete withdrawal from the Students' Society on the part of the MUS. "I, personally do not feel that we would be serving our own interests best by withdrawing from the Students' Society." This view, however, is not held by the majority of the students.

In order to underwrite expenditures for projected expanded operations, Mr. Mosher declared that it was absolutely necessary for the MUS to be guaranteed of a larger grant than that which they were getting, and proposed to the SEC that their grant be increased from $1.00 to $6.00 per student.

While it was realized that the MUS could be set on the role of autonomy in two ways, either to make them financially independent, or to allow them to dissociate from the Students' Society, it was pointed out at the meeting that a third way in which to set them on this road would be to deny them the right of dissociation.

There was no agreement reached as to the size of this increase, nor as to the method of its distribution. In order to tackle these problems, a motion was carried proposing "That the SEC appoint a committee to meet with officers of the MUS to try to arrive at a suitable ideal per capita grant to MUS and that this grant not necessarily be guaranteed in its entirety. The committee to report back to the SEC at its next meeting." Messrs. Louis Donolo, Stuart Smith, and Don Johnston were appointed by the Council to meet with the MUS.

The SEC approved the expenditure of $800.00 on a Press to enable various Students' Society organizations to print posters free of charge. Mr. David Freedman pointed out that the cost of printing posters last year totalled approximately $1750, and that the facilities of a press, would enable the printing of posters at approximately 5 to 6% of the commercial cost. Mr. Freedman said that "only those organizations spending a considerable portion of their budgets on having extensive printing expenditures will be allowed to make use of the press, the cost of which will be borne by the Students' Union. Facilities will, however, be available to other campus organizations for use of the press at rates under commercial tenders. The press is expected to arrive within a month."

Committee Organized

A committee consisting of Louis Donolo, Bill Wilson, and Wilfred Hastings, Secretary-Treasurer of the Students' Society, was organized to set up some sort of objective standard for the allocation of complimentary tickets to various campus events.

The following appointments were approved of by the council: Kim Kertland and Vito Volterra, WUS Co-Chairman; Douglas Robertson, Editor of Forge; Stan Fisher, Editor of Fig Leaf; Fred Seligman, Students' Directory Editor; Joan Fish and John Roland, Blood Drive Chairman and Vice-Chairman, respectively; Paul Lowenstein, Chairman of the McGill Prom.

Advice To Advisers

The freshman is in a bit of a fix. He enters the University with a red book to guide him and little else. It is true that most of the courses he takes are compulsory. But there is always that first important decision — Arts or Science? Engineering or Commerce? Not every freshman is completely decided at the outset on which career to pursue. Even if he is, he might be unsure of the best course of study to follow.

Then, there are minor decisions to be made. Should Biology 100 be taken as the Science requirement? Or, perhaps Physics? The freshman is not in a position to know which one of a confusing array of electives will suit his purposes best.

Although the senior faculty members are quite willing to see any student who requests an interview, they are so often bogged down with administrative tasks that the students they do see must first be screened by secretaries. A really desperate freshman or a suave upperclassman can usually get to see someone who is in a position to give him sound advice. But more often the student has to depend on the little red book, perhaps the advice of a lecturer who knows little of the courses unrelated to his own field, and the old remark dropped by some biased upperclassman.

It is true that the student can get advice on registration day. The drawbacks to this need hardly be enumerated. The student, buried under a stack of forms, sits at the adviser's desk, subjected to the stares of a score of others who would like nothing better than to see him go, so that they could take his place.

Some universities work out impressive systems which provide for advisers in various and sundry capacities. But then, some universities have impressive budgets. We would suggest something on a much more modest scale. We would like to see one qualified man freed from all administrative work, and allowed to advise students on a purely academic level. Such a man would be invaluable to the student body.

A Step In The Right Direction

There's something very heartening about the Canadian political scene these days. It is the active recognition of the role Canada can play as a leader in the Commonwealth. This role was sharply highlighted at the recent talks of Commonwealth finance ministers at Mont Tremblant.

It has been obvious for some time now that England is not the power she used to be; moreover it does not seem as if she could ever regain her former glory. The leadership in world affairs as far as Western nations are concerned lies in North America, specifically in the United States. The concept of commonwealth never entailed U.K. leadership of necessity. There is no theoretical reason why any other senior member of the commonwealth should not be the partner that takes the initiative.

Canada, by virtue of her long tradition of good government, and her strategic position next to the U.S., is eminently fitted for leadership in the commonwealth. Trade and a command of dollars is also an important factor here. Australia, the other senior member cannot easily undertake such a role because of her rather isolated position.

It is good therefore to see that the conservative government is aware of its opportunities and is taking advantage of them. The trade talks were a step in the right direction. Prime Minister's Diefenbaker's speeches on disarmament, his offer in the U.N. to have Canada stand down if any other country felt it could do more to further peace, all indicate a sense of responsibility and purpose. The appointment of Dr. Sidney Smith, an outward-going personality, should also prove of considerable value to Canada.

We were not too sure that the country really wanted the Conservatives; but we are beginning to feel that at least in the realm of international affairs they will do a fine job. They may yet make the Laurentians as well known a conference spot as Geneva or London.

High Finance Helps To Boot University Cause

The following article, composed by Mr. Muir, Chairman and President of the Royal Bank of Canada, in order to point out the problems facing Canadian Universities appeared in the September monthly letter of the bank. We pass it on to our readers as being of to pical interest.

Never before in Canada's history has there been so great interest displayed in problems associated with higher education.

We have found suddenly, in a rapidly expanding economy and a swelling population, that we need highly educated citizens, that they are not available, and that the universities to which we look for them are in serious financial need. The many-headed problem is one that concerns all of us.

Here are the elements of the problem in a nutshell. A flood of students, product of our greatly increased birth rate, is lapping at the doors of our universities and will reach full tide in the nineteen sixties. In 1956, compared with 1951, we had an increase of 409,000 in the age group 5 to 9 years, and the increase under 5 years was 261,000. The expected doubling of student enrolment will far exceed our university classroom facilities. The required army of new teachers is not yet in sight. The needed funds are not assured.

Is it any wonder that thinking people in all walks of life are feeling acute anxiety?

I believe that I stated the case moderately and accurately in my annual address to shareholders of this bank in January. Our educational crisis is primarily an economic one, and it is therefore an appropriate matter for public discussion.

Let us keep in mind that the material progress of Canada is the product of the imagination and spirit of her people. These can be stirred and made effective only through education. Only by education can our young people be made ready to cope with the great tides of change that are sweeping over the world.

We as citizens must, through government, business and individual action, make sure that our schools and universities are provided with sources of funds sufficient to attract, to retain and to replenish the supply of qualified teachers that will make this education possible.

As I pointed out in January, the economic resources at the disposal of our schools and universities, and of many of our churches, are insufficient to maintain decent living standards for the devoted men and women whose life work it is to train the minds and develop the character of our young people.

It is a ridiculous situation, but by no means an uncommon one, to find that a new graduate receives a salary on his first job that approaches or even surpasses what his teachers, in school and church alike, receive as their material reward after a lifetime of service.

From where I sit it seems that business is reaching out more and more for people whose training is broad, deeply infused with the ideas that come from a sound liberal education programme, and ideals that arise out of association with great minds.

By education I do not mean learning for learning's sake, but education to train the mind to think, to reason, to explore, and above all to continue to educate itself so that there will be created a well of knowledge from which to draw not only inspiration but the technique of performance and production. Those who have been taught that one must think, read, and relentlessly pursue the quest of knowledge, and that knowledge is largely useless if not applied, are fortunate men and women.

But the years of youth allotted to a man are short. We need to fill them with the most wholesome and lasting experiences — and these can be provided only by capable, happy and devoted teachers.
